WELCOME TO

Key Largo

As you approach the first of the Florida Keys, prepare for an incredible sight – Key Largo, the Atlantic Ocean and Florida Bay from the top of the Jewfish Creek Bridge, soaring 65 feet above the water. Welcome to the island of Key Largo, your first key in paradise where you can kick off your shoes and leave the cares of the world behind.

The draw has always been the sea – its beauty and its bounty sounding the siren song. Clear waters beckon you to explore the only living coral reefs in the continental U.S. at John Pennekamp Coral Reef State Park.

In 2010, Pennekamp – The first underwater park in the United States – Celebrated its 50th anniversary. Be sure to check out the newly refurbished 30,000-gallon saltwater aquarium there.

Scuba diving and snorkeling the fragile reef reveals a Technicolor explosion of tropical fish and calming coral “gardens”. Visitors flock to the Christ of the Deep statue, which resides north of the 510-foot U.S.S. Spiegel Grove artificial reef.

For fisherman, nothing beats the rewards of a day spent hooking snapper, grouper, and amberjack or landing tarpon or one of the area’s gray ghosts – the elusive bonefish, found on the shallow-water flats.

Watersports abound for the adrenaline enthusiast and nature lover alike – rent a Jet Ski or a kayak and chart your own course. Or leave the “driving” to any of our qualified eco-tour operators, who can show you manatees, brilliant roseate spoonbills as they roost and soar overhead, pods of playful wild dolphins and more.

For Land-based enchantment, nature trails at Pennekamp Park and Everglades National Park offer a glimpse into South Florida’s unique hammock and marshland ecosystems.

When night comes, island living means dining on fresh-caught seafood at a waterfront restaurant and then relaxing to the sounds of waves lapping softly at the shore or enjoying live entertainment at area venues. But don’t worry about a dress code – Key Largo is laid back and casual, even at its most formal. However, if the urge to dress up overcomes you, go for it! Virtually anything goes here!

From first-class resorts to luxurious oceanfront estates, to charming beach bungalows and small boutique hotels, you’ll find your own slice of paradise to call home.

If island time fits the rhythm of your life, Key Largo is sure to please, whether you choose to fill your days with activities or relax in the glow of our spectacular sunsets.

Photography Provider

Legendary KEY LARGO

Chamber of Commerce

The Key Largo Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Center has been a testament to the dedication of its members since the 1930s, when a group of Upper Keys business owners got together to discuss how to improve their business environment.

Incorporated in the 1970s, the Upper Keys Chamber of Commerce became the Legendary Key Largo Chamber of Commerce in 1985, capitalizing on the enormous power of name recognition. Key Largo is a renowned destination and a name that experience has proven guarantees an enthusiastic and positive response.

Since its inception, the focus of the Legendary Key Largo Chamber of Commerce has been the promotion of the economy through support of good business, good government and good citizenship.

The Key Largo Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Center works closely with all local organizations and institutions to improve the quality of life for all. We interact with government on the local, state and federal levels on issues of importance to the business community.

The Key Largo Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Center is active in all aspects of community life, and through various projects and committees, our members show they share the chamber's commitment to community and business service.

The island of Key Largo, and the Florida Keys as a whole, relies on its major industry – tourism. The chamber promotes the importance of maintaining and enhancing this industry with the knowledge that all businesses in the community benefit from a thriving tourist economy.

Every dollar spent by a visitor for accommodations, attractions, dining or shopping filters down to our accountants, attorneys, bankers, contractors, electricians, hairdressers, insurance agents, painters, physicians, veterinarians and on and on.

The chamber provides many opportunities for community and personal growth through its committees. Members are encouraged to become an integral part of the progress of the chamber and the community through investing time in their special area of interest.

We Mean Business

The key to the chamber's future success lies in membership. Let the chamber know about your business concerns and allow the chamber to demonstrate how it can serve you. The members define the direction of the chamber, and your voice needs to be heard. Join us as we endeavor to bring a healthy, happy successful working environment to the communities in which we live, and a prosperous future to all.

The chamber's website contains a wealth of information about businesses, as well as a number of special reports on everything from highway beautification funding source to workforce studies to managing emergencies and more.

Networking Opportunities

The chamber provides all members opportunities to promote your business or service through monthly luncheon meetings and Members in Motion after-hours business socials.

Come for a few days – or forever –
We know you'll enjoy your stay.

Key Largo has it all...

Above, Under, Near or On the Water

By Donna Dietrich • Edited by Key Largo Chamber of Commerce • Photo by Hibiscus Marketing

In Key Largo, you can enjoy a down-to-earth, carefree feeling of summer by the sea all throughout the year. Get ready to jump in and soak up what we have to offer!

Diving

Known as the dive capital of the United States because of our wondrous coral reef and numerous artificial reefs, Key Largo has nearly two dozen experienced dive companies to take you out on memorable dive trips to the reef or one of the shipwrecks.

They can also teach you to dive and help get you certified.

Snorkeling

Snorkeling is a wonderful way to commune with the undersea world without having to do lots of heavy gear or take lessons.

Just strap on a mask and snorkel, perhaps a pair of fins and float gently on the surface as you watch snappers, parrotfish, starfish, tarpon, and schools of silversides swim among colorful corals and sponges. The great thing about snorkeling is you don't have to be a world-class swimmer – novice snorkelers can quickly and safely get the hang of the sport.

The ultimate snorkel spot is the coral reef and the dive companies in Key Largo are eager to take you there.

Paddle Boarding

Stand-up paddle boarding, or SUP, is one of the fast-growing trends in water sports.

“It is like walking on water,” according to East Coast Paddle Surfing..

The shallow, calm, clear waters off Key Largo make this ideal for this easy to learn sport. Rent a board and paddle at one of the water sport outlets in the Upper Keys, get a few minutes of instruction, and you're on the water.

Kayaking

This is an easy, peaceful way to get out on the water. Venture out to the open bay waters and be on the lookout for manatees and playful dolphins splashing around. Maybe even tie up at a waterfront restaurant for a bite to eat.

For a gentler paddle, explore the narrow, mangrove trails of John Pennekamp Coral Reef State Park or those off Garden Cove Park.

Kayaks are available for rent at most water sport outlets. If you brought your own, launch sites are available at parks, and guided tours are offered as well.

Swimming

Swimming in warm waters around Key Largo is a year-round treat. Most of the waterfront hotels have small swimming beaches, as do John Pennekamp and Harry Harris parks.

Try the locals' favorite form of swimming – jump in the water from the deck of an anchored boat. It is such a lighthearted feeling!

Make sure you have a swim ladder for easy access back aboard, and be aware of currents that could take you away from the boat.

Motor and sail boat rentals are available at several outlets in Key Largo.

If a pool is your idea of a good place to swim, Jacobs Aquatic center at Key Largo Park has a lap pool, low and high dive boards and a kiddie pool complete with a pirate ship.

Parasailing

For the thrill seeker, try soaring above the bay attached to a parasail. Key Largo has operators ready to take you up in the sky. They strap you in, their boat pulls forward, your chute fills, and you ascend, getting a view of Key Largo you will not soon forget.

Other Alternatives

Key Largo offers great ways to get out on the water and enjoying an extended summer!

If you want to fish, fishing guides with boats abound in Key Largo, or just drop in a line from the shore. Rent a personal watercraft, a paddle boat, a sailing catamaran – they are all easily available around town.

See page 28 for details on where you can find the water sport outlet of your choice.

How You Can Help with Hurricane Recovery

Are you wondering how can you help in Hurricane Irma recovery? Come down for a visit!

All our attractions are open in Key Largo, as well as our fishing and dive charters, and eco-tours. Our restaurants and bars welcome you, and a majority of the hotels are open, with two coming back online soon.

Tourism dollars are a great way to help the local economy! Make your travel plans now by calling the Key Largo Chamber of Commerce and Visitor Center. We can be reached at 1-800- FLA-Keys, press#1 to connect to Key Largo.

Paradise awaits you in the Florida Keys...

In Key Largo there's an adventure around every corner.

Theater of the Sea: Marine Menagerie Amongst Mangroves

Where can a family spend a full day interacting with dolphins, sea lions, sharks and rays, enjoy a few hours relaxing on the beach, and go on a bottomless boat ride?

Theater of the Sea has been welcoming visitors to the Florida Keys since 1946. Besides being a fun place to take the family, it serves as a sanctuary to many aquatic residents such as four different varieties of endangered sea turtles. In addition, it is the home to several parrots who were turned over by private owners, and “Toby” a dolphin that was attacked by a shark. Although not a rescue animal, visitors will “ooh” and “aah” over an adorable new baby sea lion.

Upon approaching the park, visitors will notice the beautiful fountains, giant conch shell, and award winning landscaping. After purchasing their tickets, visitors leave the chaos and havoc of their daily lives and step into a world filled with beautiful green foliage, clearly paved paths, and an amazing menagerie of animals. It is certainly not part of the concrete jungle with wide open spaces. Like a good glass of wine, Theater of the Sea is not something to be rushed, but to be savored slowly over a period of time in small, enchanting sips. With intimate vignettes visitors meander along its lush paths and watch sea turtles being fed by hand, or stop to experience a thrilling dolphin show similar to those first seen in the 1940’s. As they stroll about, guests will see two distinct eco systems and also have opportunities to watch a sea lion show, parrot show, and observe crocodylians. Visitors will be delighted to know that this is not a zoo and can expect to get up close and personal with many of the animals.

Children and adults of all ages will have ample opportunities to interact with the animals while visiting Theater of the Sea. Dolphin lovers, for example, will delight in the antics of these loving, social creatures while snorkeling beside them. Included in this experience are dorsal tows, hugs, and kisses. Those a little less daring can do a dolphin wade, which entails interacting with the dolphins while standing in three to four feet of water. Want to join the fun but don’t want to get wet? Even land lovers can interact with the dolphins and get a few kisses too! Many encounters are also available with sea lions.

After a stroll around the park, visitors can enjoy a quick bite to eat at Nicky’s Grill, and relax on the beach at the lagoon.

As a timeless tradition of the Florida Keys, Theater of the Sea is something you will not want to miss. For more information or to make reservations, go to theaterofthesea.com, or call 305-664-2431.

What is a Native Conch?

What is a native Conch? To a beachcomber it is a beautiful shell found on the beach. Or if you are a foodie, the name may remind you of a wonderful bowl of chowder, or perhaps fritters.

However, in the Florida Keys the question is not “what” but “who.” In our chain of islands, the term native Conch usually refers to a lifelong resident born in the Keys. Those of us that are not native, and eventually take up residency, are humorously referred to as “freshwater” conchs.

Come stay in Key Largo, your first Key in paradise!

Key Largo Cuisine

While you're here, make sure you tempt your taste buds with the unusual tastes of Keys cuisine.

CONCH: Conch meat tastes like an exotic kind of clam. Though native conch (a large marine snail) is no longer served in the Keys due to overharvesting in the past, imported conch provides the meat for crunchy fritters, "cracked" conch (pounded conch meat breaded and fried), spicy conch chowder or raw, marinated conch served in salads.

DOLPHIN: Don't worry – that's not Flipper you're about to eat! This firm, white-fleshed, delicious fish really is a fish, and not to be confused with the mammal of TV fame. It's delicious grilled, Cajun-style or blackened.

FLORIDA LOBSTER : In season August 6 – March 31, Florida lobster has no claws like the Maine variety, and is often referred to as the "spiny lobster". Florida lobster tails typically broiled or grilled and served with lots of melted butter.

KEY LIME PIE: This delicious dessert originated in Key West, but don't be fooled by bright green concoctions – real key lime pie is yellow.

STONE CRAB: Florida stone crab season runs from mid-October to the end of May. The crabs are harvested only for their claws and live crabs are returned to the water so the claws can regenerate. The claw meat is flaky and white or off-white with a sweet taste.

All phone numbers are 305 area code unless otherwise stated.

Whether you're famished after a day of island activities or fueling up for a fun filled itinerary, Key Largo's eateries serve up fine and varied fare. Of course, you can't leave the Keys without having fresh fish at an exceptional area fish house. Snapper, Mahi-mahi, Grouper and Tuna are among the area's fresh-caught specialties.

This is your chance to try a warm, fresh conch fritter. And to top it all off, nothing but key lime pie will do. Most dining establishments in Key Largo double as entertainment venues, so be sure to linger over cocktails to listen to the sounds of the island. Dancing the night away is part of the island experience!

Everyone is excited and you fly off to your vacation destination. You land, get baggage and pick up the rental car and off you go to the vacation rental you found online. After hours of travel you finally arrive at the home to find out you have nowhere to stay.

Vacation rentals have become increasingly popular in recent years as they offer a relaxed, home-like atmosphere as well as an exceptional value over traditional vacation accommodations. While the advantages are many, there are some important things with respect to local licensing and rental restrictions to consider before renting.

Monroe County encompasses various incorporated communities which have very specific minimum-stay restrictions, license requirements and laws regarding vacation rentals. Each area has a code enforcement division and staff to specifically investigate suspected illegal rental activity. Perhaps a neighbor has reported it or, in some cases, the enforcement agents have found the property advertised on one of the big vacation rental websites like VRBO, Home Away or Craigs List. If they visit the property and determine an illegal rental is taking place, the unsuspecting vacationer becomes a party to this illegal rental activity and can have their vacation ruined.

In addition to adhering to local rental restrictions, homeowners and management companies alike are obligated to collect a state sales tax and local bed tax from vacationers. If an advertised rental does not specifically state these taxes are being charged, it is a good indication the property is being rented illegally.

Bottom-line...don't be afraid to ask questions. All private homes renting for less than a 28 or 29 night stay, depending on the community, are required to have a special vacation rental number. If a property is operating legally the homeowner should gladly provide you the name and number of the appropriate governing agency so you can call and verify the number is legitimate. The license is expensive to acquire and entails a mountain of paperwork annually so if the rental is legit... they will gladly provide you their number. If they will not...run!

There are numerous gated communities that do not fall under the minimum-stay requirement but still must have other licenses to operate legally. Therefore, to offer the best protection to your vacation investment, we recommend renting through an established, locally operated, rental agency. Local agencies are not only familiar with the required licensing, tax laws and minimum-stay restrictions in each area, but they hold specific vacation rental and tax licenses to ensure you do not experience a vacation misadventure.

The Key Largo Chamber of Commerce is here to help you by referring business such as Barefeet Rentals, Florida Keys Rental Store and Freewheeler Vacations; you can also refer to "Places to Stay" in this edition of the Visitors Guide.

Safe travels and enjoy all that Key Largo and the Florida Keys have to offer.

Everglades National Park is Open

What to Know about Visiting After Hurricane Irma

The Everglades is known for its resilience. When Hurricane Irma made landfall in south Florida as a Category 4 storm in September 2017, it gave this extraordinary ecosystem the opportunity to once again show its strength. Everglades National Park and its surrounding communities were hard-hit, but National Park Service staff from around the country joined Everglades staff and volunteers in intensive cleanup and recovery efforts, to enable safe reopening as soon as possible.

Returning visitors will notice some significant changes, and first time visitors will experience what a natural area looks like after a significant weather event. Because some visitor service closures may remain in effect for some time, a little extra advance planning by our guests will ensure the best possible experience, even as we work toward full eventual restoration of guest services and amenities. Boaters and paddlers will also need to take extra precautions for some time, due to storm generated hazards.

All Areas of the Park are OPEN!

Come visit any of our visitor centers, including the Ernest F. Coe Visitor Center, the Flamingo Visitor Center, the Shark Valley Visitor Center, and the Gulf Coast Temporary Visitor Center! Ranger-led tours are now offered throughout the park, which you can learn more about through our park calendar.

We're off to a great start in our fall-winter season, and hope to see you soon!

The sanctuary's main office and the Florida Keys Eco-Discovery Center are located at the Dr. Nancy Foster Florida Keys Environmental Complex in Key West.
