Key West is closer to Cuba than Miami!
 When you stand at our Southernmost Point, you are 90 miles from Cuba - and 150 miles from Miami. Key West is a small island, measuring 2 x 4 miles. The highest point in Key West is Solares Hill at 18 feet above sea level. We are located at confluence of the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico and are surrounded by incredibly beautiful waters.

Key West is the only city in the continental USA to never have seen a frost!
 The coldest ever recorded for Key West was 41°F in 1981. Combine an annual average high temperature of 83°F and average low temperature of 73°F with wonderful sea breezes, and this island can truly be described as "paradise."

There are more bars per capita in Key West than anywhere in the country!
 Key West really knows how to party! But, we also have more churches per capita than any city, so we also are able to slow down and give thanks for the friendly, welcoming and wonderful "One Human Family" community we share together!

Treasure by the Ton!

Back in the 1600's Spanish Conquistadors pilled the waters off Key West in their Gallions filled with gold, silver and Colombian emeralds. Treasure hunter Mel Fisher spent decades searching for - and finally found the wrecks of both the Titania and Santa Margarita, and they have been discovering more sunken treasure every day for the last 30 years!
